NOTICE 935 OF 2001SOUTH AFRICAN LAW COMMISSION*DISCUSSION PAPER: A MORE INQUISITORIAL APPROACH TO CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

1. The Commission recently approved a discussion paper dealing with a more inquisitorial approach to criminal procedure as part of its investigation into simplification of criminal procedure.

2. As part of its original terms of reference the project committee resolved to include an investigation into the question of introducing more inquisitorial elements into our criminal procedure. The committee identified a number of components which should be targeted for investigation, namely, a greater role in the process by the judicial officer; providing the court with access to information (docket); taking defence disclosure further and making recommendations in this regard; judicial management of trials and case management; and a review of the existing provisions of section 115 of the Criminal Procedure Act.

3. The discussion paper addresses the following issues –

* Police questioning of the suspect/accused, its legitimacy, effectiveness and the right to silence and its consequences. In this regard attention is given to–

- the extent to which a suspect/accused could legitimately be questioned and hence used as a source of evidence at the different stages of the criminal justice process (from pre-trial to the trial phase);
- different options to make police questioning more effective, including by bringing it under control of codes of conduct, or under judicial control, or by legislating police questioning;
- the consequences of and constitutional implications of police questioning having due regard to the right to silence; and
- the different admissibility requirements for admissions and confessions.

* Defence disclosure before and during the trial. In this regard consideration is given to –

- whether or not the defence should be required to disclose relevant evidence, and if so, the extent to which it should be required;
- a review of the provisions of section 115 of the Criminal Procedure Act and its interaction with the right to silence and the consequences of non-disclosure; and
- whether the existing provisions with regard to prosecution disclosure are sufficient and, if not, the extent to which amendments would be justified.

* A greater role in the criminal justice process by judicial officers. The discussion paper considers ways of providing the court with access to the docket; the admissibility of statements contained in the docket; the legal status of the docket; the weight to be given to information contained in the docket; and how judicial officers should use the information in the docket.

* Possible ways of enhancing judicial management of trials and case management. As part of the investigation the discussion paper considers whether provision should be made for pre-trial conferences and, if so, the extent to which legislation are necessary.

4. In the light of the controversial nature of these issues, the constitutional implications of some of the recommendations and the different views within the project committee on the constitutional implications of some of the recommendations, in particular the permissibility of drawing an adverse inference from the failure of a suspect to disclose information during the course of the police investigation, the Commission did not take a final position on the issues and proposes that alternative options be considered with the aim to stimulate debate.

5. The Commission invites the comments of all parties who feel that they have an interest in the topic or may be affected by the measures discussed in the Discussion Paper. Individuals, organisations and institutions affected by the provisions of the proposed legislation or who are likely to be affected by possible amendments to existing legislation should participate in this debate and are invited to indicate how the present law affects them, what their concerns are, what solutions they are able to propose and whether there are other issues and/or options affecting the law that must be explored. The closing date for comments is 30 June 2001.

NOTICE 936 OF 2001SOUTH AFRICAN LAW COMMISSION*DISCUSSION PAPER: A COMPENSATION SCHEME FOR VICTIMS OF CRIME

1. The Commission recently approved its discussion paper dealing with a compensation scheme for victims of crime as part of its investigation into the reform of the law related to sentencing.
2. The discussion paper considers the feasibility of establishing a Victim Compensation Scheme (VCS) in South Africa. It begins by providing an overview of the nature and extent of violent crime in the country. This is considered critical to understanding the foundation for such a compensation scheme and for realistically costing such an endeavour. The discussion paper also briefly documents the economic, physical and psychological impacts of violent crime on its victims and discusses the services currently available to them.
3. Thereafter, debates concerning compensation are raised and an analysis of the motivations for and against the establishment of a VCS are provided. Strong arguments from a victim-centred and moral perspective are made for establishing a VCS. Some potential benefits for the criminal justice system as a whole are also described. Arguments against establishing a VCS are then outlined. These mainly focus on whether providing compensation, in a context of limited resources, should be prioritised over and above other aspects of victim support. The debates conclude that compensation, either partial or full, should be seen as a complementary component of victim support, which is vital to the ensuring the efficacy of the whole criminal justice system. This makes prioritisation difficult.
4. An overview of the South African law of damages and existing schemes that offer compensation (i.e. compensation to victims of road accidents, occupational injuries and diseases, and political traumas) are then provided. The international experience in compensating victims of crime specifically is also considered and the recovery of compensation from the offender is discussed.
5. The eligibility criteria for compensation from the State, based on comparative international data, are then elucidated. Specific parameters applied to foreign compensation schemes, which may be appropriate for inclusion in a South African scheme, are highlighted, including the mandate of these schemes, the type of crimes eligible for compensation, as well as who may qualify to apply to the scheme for compensation. This analysis of the parameters of different compensation schemes is considered the skeleton upon which any legislative framework for a South African compensation scheme would be based.

6. The findings of an analysis of selected police dockets are then reported. This is done in order to verify information about certain types of violent crimes and their impact on victims. This information is used to make assumptions when costing a VCS later in the discussion paper, and for shaping possible policy scenarios. In addition, the docket analysis focuses on the usefulness of police information in adjudicating possible claims for victim compensation. It reveals, amongst other findings, that current police recording practices provide inadequate data on which to base an assessment of compensability, such as may be required in a VCS. Of particular concern is the fact that a medical report was not completed in over 80% of the cases studied.

7. The envisaged costs associated with establishing a compensation scheme in South Africa are then discussed on the basis of certain assumptions. The variables that would determine the overall cost of the scheme are pointed out, with the estimated financial impact of various policy permutations and applied eligibility parameters considered. The discussion paper also considers the estimated administrative costs that would be incurred in running a compensation scheme. These, and the cost of different models, vary a great deal (i.e. from incredibly costly to potentially viable in the South African context) depending on the policy parameters used.

8. The discussion paper highlights possible sources of funding to finance the establishment of a VCS. Attention is given to the potential of state funding, voluntary sources and the imposition of dedicated taxes. Obstacles that may be encountered in attempting to secure such funding are considered, as are alternative expenditure choices, including the provision of limited and targeted assistance to crime victims in lieu of extensive compensatory support.

9. The mechanics of administering a victim compensation scheme are briefly delineated and some of the administrative processes that would need to be in place if such a scheme was established in South Africa examined. In particular, steps are detailed which aim to minimise the risks, while maximising the benefits to victims.

10. The discussion paper concludes by recommending that a fully-fledged compensation scheme is not possible in the short-term and details the pre-conditions (e.g. reliable police record keeping, sufficient funds, etc.) that would need to exist for such a scheme to be established in South Africa. It is, however, recommended that pilot targeted compensatory assistance be established for certain categories of victims of crime, i.e. disabled crime victims, rape survivors and the dependents of murder victims. In addition, it is recommended that a Victims of Crime Fund be set up and that dedicated taxes on firearm ownership and ammunition purchase, as well as alcohol, be considered as mechanisms for funding pilot targeted compensatory schemes.

11. Recommendations are also made concerning issues such as witness fees, restitution from offenders, the role of the victim empowerment programme and the Charter of Victims Rights. Finally, it is recommended that the development of a compensation scheme not be dismissed out of hand simply because a full-scale scheme is not feasible in the short-term. It is recommended that the feasibility of the scheme itself should be periodically assessed against a number of suggested criteria and that a VCS in South Africa should be developed incrementally.

12. The Commission invites the comments of all parties who feel that they have an interest in the topic or may be affected by the measures discussed in the Discussion Paper. Individuals, organisations and institutions affected by the provisions of the proposed legislation or who are likely to be affected by possible amendments to existing legislation should participate in this debate and are invited to indicate how the present law affects them, what their concerns are, what solutions they are able to propose and whether there are other issues and/or options affecting the law that must be explored. NOTICE 938 OF 2001SOUTH AFRICAN LAW COMMISSION*DISCUSSION PAPER 99: COMPUTER-RELATED CRIME: PRELIMINARY PROPOSALS FOR REFORM IN RESPECT OF UNAUTHORISED ACCESS TO COMPUTERS, UNAUTHORISED MODIFICATION OF COMPUTER DATA AND SOFTWARE APPLICATIONS AND RELATED PROCEDURAL ASPECTS

1. The Law Commission has recently published Discussion Paper 99 on computer-related crime.
2. This investigation focuses on the activities of obtaining unauthorised access to computer data and software applications and of unauthorised modification of computer data and software applications.
3. Computers are playing an integral part in the functioning of our society. Computers are relied upon to perform functions upon which human life as well as the economic and industrial functioning of society are dependant. The potential danger if computers performing these functions are interfered with is very serious. The Commission therefore proposes that these activities be made subject to criminal sanction.
4. The activities of obtaining unauthorised access to computer data and software applications and of unauthorised modification of computer data and software applications cannot be dealt satisfactorily with in terms of the present provisions of our criminal law. This indicates that the introduction of new offences by way of legislation should be seriously considered. It is therefore proposed that a "Computer Misuse Act" be developed for this purpose.
5. The offences that should be contained in such an Act are:
 - Unauthorised access to applications or data in computer system.
 - Unauthorised modification of applications or data in computer system.
 - Development and trafficking in devices or applications primarily used to obtain unauthorised access.
 - Trafficking in computer passwords.

- Interference with use of computer system.

6. It is also proposed that a Computer Misuse Act make provision for procedural matters such as search and seizure, admissibility of evidence and jurisdiction.

7. Respondents are requested to submit written comments, representations or requests to the Commission by 2 July 2001.

NOTICE 939 OF 2001

SOUTH AFRICAN LAW COMMISSION

DISCUSSION PAPER ON PUBLICATION OF DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS;
SECTION 12 OF THE DIVORCE ACT (ACT 70 OF 1979)

The South African Law Commission has released a discussion paper for general information and comment dealing with the publication of divorce proceedings by the media.

The South African media are, in terms of sec 12 of the Divorce Act 70 of 1979, prohibited from publishing any particulars of a divorce action or any information which comes to light in the course of such an action other than the names of the parties to a divorce action, the fact that a divorce action between the parties is pending in a court of law and the judgment or order of the court. The prohibition does not apply to the publication of particulars or information for the purposes of the administration of justice, in a bona fide law report, or for the advancement of or use in a particular profession or science.

However, since the provision does not have extra-territorial operation, the foreign media who are allowed to attend proceedings in courts are unrestricted in their reportage of South African divorce proceedings. Since South African citizens have access to the foreign media and the press, the initial purpose of the prohibition is defeated.

There are furthermore clear indications that at present the South African media are not complying with sec 12 of the Divorce Act. An important reason why the section is not adhered to is that it is seen as being unconstitutional. South Africa has a Constitution with a Bill of Rights which entrenches, inter alia, the right to freedom of speech, freedom of information and the rights to privacy and dignity. These rights are interactive and have to be balanced.

Since sec 12 is a pre-constitutional statutory provision, its constitutionality needs to be considered in terms of these rights. Sec 12 provides no discretion to the court to determine whether or in what respects the case should be held in camera or whether media disclosure should be permitted or prohibited.

It seems undesirable that legitimate areas of non-disclosure (such as aspects involving the interests of minor children) should be endangered by the current non-compliance with the provision, and at the same time that Acts of Parliament should be viewed as unenforceable and accordingly safely to be flouted.

The Commission's investigation so far has revealed four possible options for reform:

Option one makes provision for the repeal of sec 12 of the Divorce Act. One would thus revert to the position prior to the 1979 Act, where there would be no general prohibition on the publication of divorce proceedings. Any person wanting to prevent the publication of divorce proceedings would have to request the court to close the proceedings in terms of sec 16 of the Supreme Court Act 59 of 1959.

Should this option be chosen, the importance of self-regulation by the media would have to be stressed. Ethical responsibilities already laid down for the media in codes of conduct assumed voluntarily or required by statute could be developed or expanded upon. The law could, in protecting the privacy of individuals, aim to incorporate what journalists, editors and other media personnel themselves regard as high standards of reporting in order to enhance respect for legal principles.

The second option would make provision for the amendment of sec 12 of the Divorce Act so that there would be no general prohibition on publication of proceedings, but in terms of which a court would have the discretion to make an order preventing any person from publishing any particulars of a divorce action or any information or evidence which comes to light in the course of such an action. Such order would not apply for the purposes of the administration of justice, to a bona fide law report or to information published for the advancement of or use in a particular profession or science.

The third option would be the amendment of sec 12 of the Divorce Act to allow a court the discretion to make an order to lift the general prohibition on publication and to grant leave to any party to publish any particulars of a divorce or any information or evidence which comes to light in the course of such an action. The court would in exercising its discretion take into consideration the provisions of sec 28(2) of the Constitution, which specifically protect the rights of children.

Option four would entail the amendment of sec 12 to ensure the anonymity of parties. The facts of the case and court decisions would therefore be published without mentioning the names of the parties, their residential or business addresses, the suburb, town, township or village or any other information which would make it easy to identify the parties. The name of the presiding officer and the court where the case was held could, however, be publicised.

The Commission invites all interested persons and bodies to comment on the discussion paper or to make suggestions for the development, improvement, modernisation or reform of this facet of the law.

The discussion paper is obtainable free of charge from the Commission on request. (Contact person: Mr J Kabini).

It would be appreciated if written comments or suggestions could reach the Commission by 15 June 2001 at the address given below:

NOTICE 942 OF 2001

BOARD ON TARIFFS AND TRADENOTICE OF INITIATION OF A REVIEW OF THE INVESTIGATION INTO THE ALLEGED DUMPING OF SINGLE-MODE OPTICAL FIBRE CABLE ORIGINATING IN OR IMPORTED FROM SOUTH KOREA

On 31 March 2000 final anti-dumping duties were imposed on the importation of single-mode optical fibre cable originating in or imported from Samsung Electronics Company Limited, South Korea. The Board had found that the Petitioner had suffered material injury in market share and profits forgone in a growing market and that the subject products were dumped on the SACU market, causing material injury to the SACU industry as a result. The dumping margin amounted to 49,9 per cent.

On 22 November 2001 the Korean Government had consultations with the Board and submitted a number of issues for consideration by the Board which it regarded as arbitrary and unfair.

THE PRODUCT

The subject products that were investigated were single-mode optical fibre cables that were imported in 17 different cable types or configurations. The configurations were categorised into three basic application groups namely, aerial, direct buried (rodent proof) and duct type (underground). Each of the application groups consisted of a number of cable types that were differentiated by, amongst other, the number of optical fibres, as follows:

	Application or environmental categories	Number of cable types (products)	Number of fibres in each cable type
1	Aerial	4	8-12-24-48
2	Direct buried (rodent proof)	6	12-24-48-72-96-144
3	Duct (underground)	7	8-12-24-48-72-96-144

The subject products originated in or were imported from Samsung Electronics Company Limited, South Korea and is classifiable under tariff subheadings 8544.70 and 9001.10.

ISSUES LISTED BY THE KOREAN GOVERNMENT

The Korean Government listed the following issues and/or methodologies in the investigation which it regarded as being arbitrary and unfair. These were,

- ☐ that the Board used only 8 products for the normal value calculations and not all 17 products (the excluded products were not taken into account);
- ☐ that the exchange rate used in the export price backward-construction was arbitrary in the light of the fact that the Korean Won had severe fluctuations during that time. It is also stated that the tender contract lists a separate exchange rate which is different to the 5 December rate.
- ☐ that the domestic industry was not suffering injury as its sales and profits increased over the comparative period;
- ☐ that the extent of the price undercutting was incorrect as a duopoly existed before the exporter entered the market; and
- ☐ that there was an absence of causality.

PERIOD OF INVESTIGATION

The period of investigation for the purpose of determining the dumping margins in the country of origin was from October 1997 to September 1998. The period of investigation for the purpose of determining injury was for the years ending in March 1997, 1998, and 1999.

PROCEDURAL FRAMEWORK AND INVITATION FOR COMMENTS

Having considered the issues raised by the Korean Government, the Board decided to review the matter in terms of the relevant provisions of both the BTT Act and the World Trade Organisation Agreement on Implementation of Article VI of the GATT 1994 (the Anti-Dumping Agreement).

The Board has therefore decided to invite substantiated comments from interested parties on the issues of the methodologies and findings made by the Board during the final determination and which was documented in Board Report No. 4029. The Board, however, reserves the right to request any further information that it deems necessary to complete the review proceedings.

The Board will make a recommendation to the Minister of Trade and Industry after consideration of the responses or comments from interested parties.

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION

Any comments or responses that should be provided to the Board (or is requested by the Board) should also contain a non-confidential version thereof for purposes of providing this summary to interested parties. Please note that if any information in the stated responses are considered to be confidential then a non-confidential version of the information must be submitted for the public file, simultaneously with the confidential version. In submitting a non-confidential version the following rules are strictly applicable and parties must indicate:

- where confidential information has been omitted and the nature of such information;
- reasons for such confidentiality;
- a summary of the confidential information which permits a reasonable understanding of the substance of the confidential information; and
- in exceptional cases, where information is not susceptible to summary, reasons must be submitted to this effect.

This rule applies to all parties and to all correspondence with and submissions to the Board, which unless indicated to be confidential and filed together with a non-confidential version, will be placed on the public file and be made available to other interested parties. If the above requirements regarding the submission of a non-confidential version of documents are not strictly adhered to, the Board might disregard the information so submitted. If a party considers that any document of another party, on which that party is submitting representations, does not comply with the above rules and that such deficiency affects that party's ability to make meaningful representations, the details of the deficiency and the reasons why that party's rights are so affected must be submitted to the Board in writing forthwith (and at the latest 14 days prior to the date on which that party's submission is due). Failure to do so timeously will seriously hamper the proper administration of the investigation, and such party will not be able to subsequently claim an inability to make meaningful representations on the basis of the failure of such other party to meet the requirements.

The responses to the Board's preliminary review determination and any information regarding this matter must be submitted in writing to the following address: (E-mail responses will not be accepted)

PROCEDURES AND TIME LIMITS

All responses, including non-confidential version of the responses, should be received by the Director: Dumping Investigations not later than 30 days from the date of publication of this notice. Late submissions will not be accepted, except with the prior written consent of the Board. The Board will give due consideration to written requests for an extension of not more than 14 days on good cause shown (properly motivated and substantiated), if received prior to the expiry of the original 30-day period. Merely citing insufficient time is not an acceptable reason for extension. (A failure to submit an adequate non-confidential version of the response that complies with the rules set out above under the heading "Confidential Information" will be regarded as an incomplete response.)

Oral representations to the Board by any interested party may also be made on written request to the Board at least seven days prior to the expiry date of the original 30 days period to respond and by prior arrangement with the Directorate. Such oral representations must be made within the same period as the written representations, unless prior written consent of the Board has been obtained for the oral representations to be made at a later date, which shall in any event not be later than 14 days after the written representations have been submitted. Oral representations will be limited to one hour for SACU manufacturers and exporters and thirty minutes for importers.

Enquiries may be directed to the investigating officers, Mr T P Botha at telephone (27-12) 428-7722 and Mr GD Kuhn at (27-12) 428-7730 or at fax no. (27-12) 428-7736.

NOTICE 943 OF 2001BOARD ON TARIFFS AND TRADE*CUSTOMS AND EXCISE TARIFF APPLICATIONS: LIST 7/2001

The following application concerning the Customs and Excise Tariff has been received by the Board on Tariffs and Trade. Any objection to or comment on this representation should be submitted to the Chairman, Board on Tariffs and Trade, Private Bag X753, Pretoria, 0001, within six weeks of the date of this notice. Attention is drawn to the fact that the rate of duty mentioned in the application is that requested by the applicant and that the Board may, depending on its findings, recommend a lower or higher rate of duty.

Removal of the following tariff subheadings with regard to pre-vulcanised latex:

4002.11.20, 4002.20.20, 4002.41.20, 4002.51.20 and 4002.91.30.

[Please note: The removal of these tariff subheadings would lead to an increase in the rate of duty on the above-mentioned tariff subheadings, from free of duty to 10 per cent ad valorem]

[T5/2/4/2/1 (010007) Mr A Zietsman, tel: (012) 428-7755, fax (012) 428-7744]

Applicant:

Board on Tariffs and Trade, Private Bag X753, Pretoria, 0001.

The reason for the application is as follows:

The publication is as a result of an application received from The Synthetic Latex Company, who applied for the removal of tariff subheading 4002.11.20. The reason for their request was that pre-vulcanised latex is not manufactured anywhere in the world. The Board decided to broaden the scope of the investigation to cover all pre-vulcanised latex products, in order to simplify the tariff structure
