Preamble

Considering that—

The Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 (Act 108 of 1996), establishes that casinos, racing, gambling and wagering are matters of concurrent national and provincial legislative competence;

It is desirable to co-ordinate activities relating to the exercise of that concurrent competence within the national and provincial spheres of government;

It is desirable to establish certain uniform norms and standards applying generally throughout the Republic with regard to casinos, racing, gambling and wagering, so that:

Gambling activities are effectively regulated, licensed, controlled and policed;

Members of the public who participate in any licensed gambling activity are protected;

Society and the economy is protected against over-stimulation of the latent demand for gambling; and

The licensing of gambling activities is transparent, fair and equitable.

It is expedient to establish certain national institutions, and to recognise the establishment of provincial institutions, which together will determine and administer national gambling policy in a co-operative, coherent and efficient manner;

BE IT THEREFORE ENACTED by the Parliament of the Republic of South Africa, as follows:—

Explanatory Memorandum

This Bill proposes to repeal the National Gambling Act, 1996, and re-enact many of its provisions in a new form, while adding several new provisions which introduce new policies for the concurrent national and provincial regulation of casinos, racing, gambling and wagering.

The new provisions of the Bill —

- (a) establish a common scheme of prohibited conduct relating to casinos, racing, gambling and wagering,
- (b) introduce a system of registration of gambling machines to complement the existing system of provincial licensing,
- (c) provide for a common national system to electronically monitor limited payout gambling machines,
- (d) establish a new scheme of national licences to avoid the need for certain licensees to seek multiple approvals in more than one province,
- (e) provide for the inter-relationship between provincial regulatory agencies and the existing National Gambling Board,
- (f) introduce uniform licensing norms and standards applicable to provincial licences; and
- (g) establish a new inter-governmental consultative body, the National Gambling Policy Council.

Chapter 1 sets out the definitions and application provisions.

Chapter 2, Part A introduces a number of new provisions, which establish what activities are gambling activities and thus fall within the ambit of the Bill, what activities constitute bets and wagers, and what activities constitute gambling games. Although the formulations in Part A are new, the provisions continue the policy of the National Gambling Act, 1996, which included a complex series of definitions to achieve a similar effect.

Part B of Chapter 2 introduces new provisions, which give effect to a new policy of making unlicensed gambling activities unlawful on a uniform basis nationally. Section 7 goes beyond that, to introduce for the first time a prohibition against gambling on contingencies that are related to unlawful act or events. Section 11 prohibits interactive gaming, i.e. gambling over the internet, except as authorised in terms of this Act or other legislation. No such legislation presently exists in the Republic, and this Bill does not include any such provisions. Department of Trade and Industry anticipates preparing such legislation in consultation with the National Gambling Board and the provincial regulatory bodies, once all regulators have had sufficient time to properly study the policy issues and precedents for regulation. Section 15 advances the policy of the National Gambling Act, 1996 on the matter of enforceability of gambling debts. Under the existing Act, such a debt is legally enforceable if it is incurred in the course of a gambling activity regulated by, and not in conflict with, any law. Section 15 will change that so that any debt incurred in the course of licensed gambling will be legally enforceable, debts incurred in the course of lawful gambling that does not have to be licensed, will be legally enforceable to the extent that common law or other legislation provides, and debt incurred in the course of unlawful gambling will not be enforceable at all.

Part C of Chapter 2 concerns policy respecting the regulation of gambling premises. The provisions of this part re-enact certain existing regulations promulgated under the National Gambling Act, 1996.

Part D of Chapter 2 concerns the registration, licensing and certification of gambling machines. Section 18 establishes a new national requirement for all manufacturers and importers of gambling machines and devices to keep registered records of the devices that they acquire, manufacture, sell or distribute, and to affix a unique registration badge to each device. This system will allow life-time tracking of gambling devices, reinforcing efforts of the National Gambling Board and the provincial regulatory bodies to detect unlawful gambling.

The additional sections of this Part establish national norms and standards for the calibration and certification of gambling devices. Section 26 re-enacts certain existing regulations promulgated under the National Gambling Act, 1996. Section 27 imposes on the National Gambling Board responsibility to establish a national electronic monitoring system to record significant information relating to the use of limited payout gambling machines.

Part E of Chapter 2 establishes national norms and standards relating to the licensing of employees within the gambling industry.

Casinos, racing, gambling and wagering is a matter of concurrent constitutional jurisdiction. Chapter 3 addresses the inter-relationship between the National Gambling Board and the provincial licensing bodies established under provincial legislation. Under the scheme set out in this Part, the National Gambling Board will evaluate the issuance of national licences, as provided for in the Bill, and will perform a general oversight function, to ensure that national norms and standards are being met by the various provincial licensing bodies.

The jurisdiction of provincial licensing bodies under provincial legislation is recognised and affirmed in the Bill, and in addition, those bodies are assigned responsibility under the Bill to investigate applications for national licences, and to monitor compliance with such licences.

Section 37 assigns to the new National Gambling Policy Council a function of facilitating any dispute between the National Gambling Board and one or more provincial licensing bodies.

Part B of Chapter 3 introduces a scheme of national licences to be required for persons seeking to be licensed as a testing agent, a Horse Racing Authority, or to participate in the National Central Electronic Monitoring System, and to be optional for manufacturers, suppliers and maintenance providers or employees. An applicant for a national licence must apply to the Provincial licensing body in their province of residence, or intended province of business, and that body will conduct the required investigation, subject to evaluative oversight by the National Gambling Board.

Part C of Chapter 3 establishes, or re-enacts certain existing, national norms and standards concerning provincial licences.

Part D of Chapter 3 establishes, or re-enacts certain existing, national norms and standards concerning the process of issuing both national and provincial licences. Section 50 introduces a new requirement that all licences be for a fixed term of years. The Minister may prescribe different terms for different categories of licence, but no term can exceed 20 years. Transitional provisions stipulate that the fixed term of existing licences starts to run only when the Bill comes into effect.

Part E of Chapter 3 establishes, or re-enacts certain existing, national norms and standards concerning license investigations, decisions and surrender of licences.

Chapter 4 establishes the new National Gambling Policy Council, and continues the existing National Gambling Board, although with a changed composition.

The National Gambling Policy Council comprises the Minister of Trade and Industry, the several provincial MECs responsible for Casinos, racing, gambling and wagering, and, as supplementary non-voting members, the Chairperson of the National Gambling Board, and the Chairpersons of the several provincial licensing bodies.

The National Gambling Board will no longer include Chairpersons of the several provincial licensing bodies, because the Board no longer has a policy consideration function, and because the Board has an oversight responsibility with respect to provincial licensing bodies. In most other respects, the Board's composition, and corporate requirements are unchanged from the National Gambling Act 1996, although the provisions have been changed to reflect the introduction of over-arching national legislation such as the Public Finance Management Act, 1999.

Chapter 5 establishes, or re-enacts certain existing, national norms and standards concerning enforcement, re-enacts provisions concerning the inspectors to be appointed by the National Gambling Board, and establishes various offences under the Act.

Chapter 6 establishes the Minister's regulation making authority, provides for transition from the regime under the National Gambling Act, 1996, and repeals that Act and 2 subsequent Acts that amended the National Gambling Act, 1996.

Consultation on the Bill

Originally, it was contemplated that the Minister would propose a simple bill to amend the National Gambling Act, 1996. With that intent, several drafts were prepared, leading up to a discussion draft, dated 16 January 2001. It was circulated by DTI for discussion to MINMEC and to the National Gambling Board, among others. As a result of discussions in MINMEC, several additional amendments were proposed and incorporated into a working document, in the form of a draft Bill.

DTI convened a consultative review for technical purposes with legal advisors from the various provincial administrations late in May 2001, to review and comment on the working document. Following that review, and after receiving directions from the Minister, DTI directed the development of a number of successive working drafts, culminating in a Draft Amendment Bill in late 2001.

The Minister requested—

- introduction to the draft of appropriate measures concerning co-operative governance of this area of concurrent jurisdiction, as modelled in Chapter 3 of the Constitution;
- a clear statement of the responsibilities for licensing various activities as between the national and provincial spheres of government.
- within the framework of concurrent jurisdiction, a consolidated approach to addressing electronic monitoring of gambling machines;
- proposals for addressing the urgent concern for compulsive and addictive gambling;
- reference to internet gambling, and a foundation on which to establish national regulation of that industry;
- incorporation into the Act of several fundamental requirements currently found in regulations, and a better statutory foundation for remaining regulations; and
- an edited, hopefully clearer language, draft;

Through the process of successive re-drafting, it became apparent that the changes that were required far exceeded the normal scope of an amendment bill, and that it would be difficult to honour the Minister's request for a clearer, more rationally organised, Act without starting out afresh. Following a discussion of the merits of repealing and replacing the existing Act, (and having heard an appeal from members of the relevant parliamentary committee requesting fewer wholesale amendment bills), officials of DTI gave instructions for the preparation of a complete new Bill, incorporating the surviving provisions of the existing Act, together with all new matters on which previous instructions had been given.

Between December 2001 and July, 2002, six drafts of this Bill were prepared and circulated to the National Gambling Board and provincial licensing authorities. Consultations were held with legal advisors from the same bodies in May, 2001, July 2002, and August 2002.

The 7th draft of the Bill, dated 10 August 2002, reflected discussions with provincial gambling board legal advisors held at Boksburg on 22 July 2002, subsequent discussions with officials of the NGB, and directions from officials of DTI, up to 26 July, 2002 as well as written comments received from provincial gambling board legal advisors and discussions held at Cape Town on 7 August, 2002.

Following receipt of comments in response to Draft 7, an 8th draft was circulated in early December, 2002, again inviting PLA and NGB submissions.

The 9th draft reflects the drafter's further refinements, based on responses to Draft 8, and this Draft reflects the final instructions given by DTI in response to comments received after the release of Draft 9.
