SUMMARY OF THE FOODSTUFFS, COSMETICS AND DISINFECTANTS AMENDMENT BILL, 2005

1. PURPOSE OF THE BILL

The Bill seeks to amend the Foodstuffs, Cosmetics and Disinfectants Act, 1972 (Act No. 54 of 1972), hereinafter referred to as "Act 54 of 1972" or "the Act" by providing for-

- the authorization of medical practitioners, environmental health practitioners, veterinarians and other professionals to administer certain provisions of the Act;
- an increase on sums to be deposited by persons requesting analysis or examination of samples;
- the regulation of food premises, the handling of foodstuffs, the exportation and importation of foodstuffs, the inspection and removal, detention and destruction of food-producing animals or foodstuffs;
- the regulation of water used for food processing;
- the regulation of mollusc farming and fish farming; and
- the delegation of functions to provincial departments.

2. DISCUSSION

Since 1972, when the principal Act was passed, the Act was only amended in 1981 and since then there has never been an amendment. There have since been some developments with regard to the regulation of foodstuffs that necessitate a review of the principal Act. The Bill is discussed clause by clause.

Clause 1. The long title is amended to include the control of the exportation of foodstuffs, cosmetics and disinfectants in the Act.

Clause 2 amends certain definitions and also inserts new ones. The new definitions inserted are those of "environmental health practitioner", "export", "mollusc", "medical practitioner", "provincial department" and "veterinarian".

Clause 3 amends section 10 of the principal Act which provides for the appointment and powers and functions of inspectors. The clause enables the Director-General to appoint, as inspectors, persons who are not necessarily under the Director-General's control, i.e

those that are not employed by the national Department of Health. These persons include medical practitioners, environmental health practitioners and veterinarians.

Clause 4 increases an amount which is payable by an accused person who requires a further analysis or examination to be conducted on a sample that is adduced as evidence by the prosecution under the Act. The current amount is R25 and the proposed amount is R500.00.

Clause 5 seeks to amend section 15 of the principal Act that provides for the making of regulations and adds further matters in respect of which regulations may be made. Different regulations may be made in respect of different classes of premises, appliances and vehicles used for conveying foodstuffs. The regulations may also empower a medical practitioner, environmental health officer or veterinarian to seize, detain or destroy any diseased animal or unwholesome foodstuff.

Clause 6 inserts a new section 15A which enables the Minister, after consultation with the Minister of Agriculture and Land Affairs and the Minister of Water Affairs and Forestry, to make regulations relating to the supply for consumption of molluscs or fish from mollusc nurseries or fish breeding stations or fish farms.

Clause 7 repeals section 16 of the principal Act which deals with preservation of secrecy. The section is no longer necessary as transparency and openness are encouraged in the administration of laws. Further, there are laws that regulate access to information and the repeal will ensure that there is no conflict with these laws.

Clause 8 amends section 18 of the principal Act which provides for penalties and seeks to delete the current maximum fines. The determination of fines is left to the courts.

Clauses 9 and 10

Clause 9 seeks to amend section 25 of the principal Act which provides for the delegation of powers. The Director-General is empowered to delegate functions to officers in the national as well as provincial departments of health as well as other provincial departments. Clause 10 provides for the Short Title of the Act.

3. CONSTITUTIONAL IMPLICATIONS

The Department of Health is satisfied that the provisions of the Bill are not unconstitutional. In fact, the Bill reinforces the principles of co-operative government in that its implementation requires participation by all three spheres of government.

4. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

The State Law Adviser and the Department of Health are of the opinion that the Bill must be dealt with in accordance with the parliamentary procedure established by section 76 of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 (Act No. 108 of 1996) as provinces are involved in the administration of the Act and are therefore affected.

Objectives of the Council research programme

The objectives of the Council in commissioning health and safety research, for both general and commodity-based projects, are to:

- Obtain and evaluate information to establish evidence-based risk assessment, standard setting and health and safety performance measurement;
- Develop techniques or guidelines to prevent, reduce, control or eliminate risks;
- Develop and pilot innovative ideas and procedures, where appropriate, to eliminate, reduce or control risk;
- Obtain information on the extent of work-related ill health;
- Identify, develop and improve sampling and measurement techniques to detect environmental hazards and assess personal exposure;
- Understand the aetiology and identify and evaluate best-practice screening, diagnostic and treatment interventions to reduce the impact of occupational disease;
- Evaluate the effectiveness of control interventions;
- Understand risk perception, attitudes and behaviour related to health and safety and promote best practices in hazard recognition and procedural conformance;
- Empower its statutory committees to formulate policy, expedite research aimed at improving the health and safety in the South African mining industry; and
- Collaborate with national and international initiatives and research to promote health and safety in the mining industry.

The criteria by which proposals will be evaluated include:

- Added value and impact – the Council supports research which can contribute significantly to the improvement in the health and safety of South African miners;
- Value for money – the Council supports cost-effective research;
- Innovation – the Council welcomes new approaches or new areas of focus for research leading to technologies or best practices to improve health and safety;
- Excellence – the Council demands excellence, particularly in the methods employed to conduct research, be it quantitative or qualitative, and hence will consider the track record of the proposer/s for expertise and delivery (quality, time and to budget);
- Use and development of research skills – the Council requires research teams to possess the skills relevant to the success of the project and also favours projects which assist in developing research capacity, particularly in previously disadvantaged groups;
- Collaboration - the Council places a high priority on collaboration between researchers and the "teams of excellence" approach. Thus, the means of soliciting research proposals is intended to stimulate collaboration between centres of excellence and individual experts in order to optimise the use of the Council funding and the research outcomes.
- Development of key indicators – the Council recognises the challenge in assessing performance and improvement in health, as opposed to safety, in the mining industry. There is a lack of suitable occupational health (OH) indicators and baseline data. Thus innovative and robust research to develop relevant OH indicators and baseline values will be favourably considered.

The Council's research and implementation programme consists of occupational health and safety, addresses occupational medicine and hygiene, rock engineering, engineering and machinery, behavioural issues and technology transfer processes.

Each proposal must:

- Address only the research topic advertised and this must be specified;
- Be in the format indicated and the template specified using Word format; and
- Be phased as indicated in the project scope.

The development of practical guideline on fatigue management with specific reference to the mining industry

Motivation

Fatigue management in the South African industry as a comprehensive and coordinated entity is non-existent. Fatigue is a complex state characterised by a lack of alertness and reduced mental and physical performance, often accompanied by drowsiness. Human fatigue is multi-factorial and could be either work related or non-work related. Typical causes of operator fatigue include:

- Disruptions in circadian rhythms associated with phase shifting in sleep/wakefulness cycles;
- Insufficient sleep duration (< 7-8 hrs);
- Poor sleep quality (awakenings);
- Duration of daily duty periods;
- Effect of work environment e.g. sub-optimally designed shift schedules (unusual work schedules; housing; nutrition, organisational culture)
- Certain medical conditions (e.g. obstructive sleep-apnoea syndrome) and medications;
- Substance use and abuse, and
- Lifestyle.

Fatigue can pose an occupational health and safety hazard to the individual and colleagues. SIM040901 represent the initial initiative to address fatigue management currently piloted in one mine.

Primary outputs

Phase 1: Detailed report on assessment of risk and fatigue management. This should include feasibility on elements on fatigue management program and detailed program on piloting the program

Phase 2: Pilot of the fatigue management program. Best practical handbook and guideline on feasible fatigue management program in the mining industry

Scope

Literature review of fatigue and fatigue management programs. Assess the various factors in the mining industries including current existing strategies if any. Assess different models of fatigue management and establish through this research the best applicable for different levels of operations underground or surface. The researcher must also draw lessons learnt from previous SIMRAC projects previous SIMRAC research done from 1993 to date. Consider learning points from SIM040901. Review the feasibility of including the following aspects on fatigue management program

- Organisational culture and management commitment;
- Management-worker communication;
- Ongoing communications on fatigue management;
- Shift scheduling;
- Fatigue-specific (purpose designed) medical assessment of fitness for work;

SIM 06 02 01Thrust 2: Rockfalls*Project title*Rockfall Elimination Programme

Proposals for the project are NOT being sought at this stage. SIMRAC is seeking to appoint a lead organisation to collaborate with the Mine Health and Safety Council in managing and shaping this important programme. An invitation is extended to experienced individuals/organizations to apply for the task of scoping this long term programme and to carry out the initial programme of work indicated below. Details of the organisation, proposed leader and project team and any envisaged sub-contractors should be submitted with curriculum vitae.

Motivation

Rockfalls still remain the highest cause of fatalities in the South African mining industry, even though it is not an insurmountable technical problem and on which the MHSC has expended considerable resources. Although progress has been made in the last decade to addressing this problem, some sectors are performing better than others. The Leon commission in 1995 identified rock related issues as one of the issues that should be controlled in order to improve safety for all who work in the mining industry. There are two aspects to the rock related problem; one is rockfalls and the other is rockbursts. In 2005 the MHSC initiated a long term programme to deal with rockbursts. The issue of rockfalls now needs to be tackled in a similar manner through a long term programme of work. The programme will address the many aspects of rockfalls through shorter term projects but all contributing to the long term programme that will see rockfalls reduced on all South African mines.

The Council now seeks to appoint a lead organisation/individual to scope a long term programme to eliminate rockfalls in the mining industry. Such a project should consider all aspects that contribute to the rockfall problem, identifying root causes and providing solutions to eliminate their effect.

Some issues have already been identified as needing to be addressed. These issues are:

- Review of stope and tunnel design theory and practice
- The risk of mining layouts and support designs
- Survey and evaluation of face support systems for tabular hard rock mines
- A survey of rock related safety at shift start-up

They should be integrated into the long term programme and tackled in the first year if possible.

Primary outputs

1. Appointment of a lead organisation/project leader who will scope a long term programme in the industry to radically reduce rockfall incidents, fatalities and injuries.
2. A scope of work over the next 5 years that will measurably reduce the loss caused by rockfalls in the industry, including suggested areas of concern in the first year.
3. Outputs from the four areas
 - Review of stope and tunnel design theory and practice.
 - The risk of mining layouts and support designs
 - Survey and evaluation of face support systems for tabular hard rock mines
 - A survey of rock related safety at shift start-up.

ScopeYear 1*Phase 1

Phase 1 of the project will be to scope the rockfall programme in detail for the first year, including the issues raised by the industry, and in considerable detail for the remaining 4 years.

Phase 2

Address the immediate issues raised by the mining industry. These issues include but are not limited to the following:

- Review of stope and tunnel design theory and practice
- The risk of mining layouts and support designs
- Survey and evaluation of face support systems for tabular hard rock mines
- A survey of rock related safety at shift start-up

Year 2 – 5

Details to be determined during the scoping exercise

The programme will cover all mining sectors, addressing the problems of rockfalls

Estimated duration and cost

Year 1:

Phase 1: 3 months R200 000

Phase 2: 9 months R2 300 000

The successful candidate/organisation will possess knowledge in the field of rockfalls, have experience in mining and research and have a good track record in the industry of delivery of outputs. The ability to manage different research topics related to the overall rockfall programme, sometimes in different organisations, will be a necessity.

SIM 06 05 02Thrust 5: Machinery and Transportation Systems*Project title

Develop a best practice guide for the design, installation, operation and maintenance of scraper winch systems

Motivation

The SAMRASS data shows that scraper systems account for 9% fatalities and 26% injuries in the transportation and machinery thrust area, which itself accounts for 25% fatalities and 22% injuries in the whole mining industry. Scraper accidents rank third highest in risk prevalence, (behind locomotives and trackless mobile equipment) within this thrust. It is generally believed that there are many varieties of practices applied to scraper winches at mines at which they are installed. SIM 03 05 01 concluded that the main causes of scraper related accidents were human factors, ranging from poor supervision, to non-compliance with standard procedures. The aim of this study is to investigate a variety of installations, with regards to design, operation and maintenance issues thereby gaining an understanding to enable the compilation of a best practice document for scraper systems used in the South African mining industry. A holistic approach to be followed to assess the whole scraper system, including mono winches.

Primary outputs

A best practice guide document on the design, installation, operation and maintenance of scraper winches systems.

Scope

This work must include a review of the SAMRASS database, to gain an understanding of the circumstances under which most scraper accidents occur. Site visits of at least 4 gold and 6 platinum mines will be undertaken to review the following aspects:

- Design issues.
- Rigging procedures.
- Signalling/communication systems, including radio communications and their applicability in the underground environment.
- Any other aspects of relevance to the accomplishment of the primary output.
- Perusal of SIM 03 05 01.

SIM 06 05 03Thrust 5: Machinery and Transportation Systems*Project title

Identify the reasons for electrical accidents in SA mines

Motivation

The SAMRASS database has indicated a sudden increase in fatal accidents caused by electrocution in the South African mining industry. During the period 2001 and 2004 (inclusive), electrocutions have accounted for about 4% of fatalities in the Machinery and transportation thrust area. However, the period between 2001 and 2005 showed an increase to 10%. This represents about 7 people losing their lives per annum due to electrocutions. This risk cannot be ignored. SIMRAC has not undertaken any research into this problem.

This projects aims to investigate the extent to which electrocutions in the mining industry can be mitigated.

Primary outputs

A report explaining the main reasons for fatal electrocutions in the South African mining industry, and suggestions for their mitigation.

Scope

Review the SAMRASS data and any other credible source of information and establish the reasons for electrocution fatalities. Conduct interviews with the mining industry role players (including members of the CM&EE, SACEA and AMRE) to obtain a balanced view of this problem. Explore possible solutions and recommend specific areas of further research, if any. The following areas must be investigated:

- The effectiveness of training of electrical artisans.
- Compliance issues, i.e., with regulations and mine standards.
- Power failure problems.
- Review the Department of Labour electrical regulations in light of reducing fatal accidents
- Review lock-out procedures (at a high level only) prior to working on electrical equipment.

SIM 06 08 01Thrust 8: Occupational diseases*Project title

Dermatitis in the SA mining industry

Motivation

The SIMRAC Handbook on Occupational Health Practice chapter on occupational skin disorders in the mining industry reviewed all the available information regarding the SA mining industry. The review indicated that occupational skin disorders have been largely unrecognised and underreported, much less researched. The little available evidence indicates that dermatitis is the commonest occupational skin disease in SA miners, accounting for over 60% of skin conditions referred to a dermatologist and that gold, platinum and coal mining (underground and surface) are represented. The diversity of mining and processing operations and exposures to known skin irritants and allergens make occupational dermatitis a priority area for SIMRAC research.

Primary output: Practical guide on occupational skin disease control program for the mining industry

ScopesPhase 1

- Review of dermatitis in mining and processing, priority exposures, assessment and management programmes and tools, and cases submitted for compensation;
- Survey of occupational health practitioners in the mining industry to identify current practice in dermatology;
- Incidence and prevalence studies of dermatitis in a representative sample of mines;
- Analysis of tasks of symptomatic individuals and to identify and prioritise exposures;
- Occupational engineering assessment of potential exposures to create a task/ exposure matrix;
- Health and engineering guidelines and tools to prevent, assess and manage occupational dermatitis; and
- Report on Phase 1 and detailed proposal for Phase 2.

Phase 2

- Development of CD based occupational skin disease control programme for the mining industry; Development of a clinical performance review programme for occupational skin diseases;
- Regional seminars to launch the training products and programme.
- Establish an on line CPD submission, consultant advisory service and accreditation for participating mine occupational health practitioners and an advisory service for engineers; and
- Report on Phase 2 process, problems and planned solutions.
- In a selected sample of research mines, evaluate the post-intervention identification and reporting of occupational dermatitis;
- Evaluate the health and engineering case problem submissions and the training products produced in Phase 2 and update with feedback from clinical review programme and engineering participants; and
- Report on the evaluation of the intervention and recommendations to ensure sustainability.

Phase 1: This phase must include review of submission rates to RMA and COID commissioner. Development of criteria and evaluation tools applicable to different models for provision of comprehensive medical services in the mining industry

Motivation

SIMRAC Health 801 undertook an audit of the medical care facilities in the South African mining industry. The outcomes of the project were recommendations on the provision of emergency care on the coordination of emergency medical response, medical equipment, transport and information systems, monitoring and evaluation. This comprehensive system has financial implications and thus the research to look into the needs of individual mines. Health 801 also proposed the possibility of collaboration amongst mines, provincial public and private sectors

A reference database of significant risks and suggested controls

Motivation

Accidents that have occurred at one mine still occur at other mines. It is not possible to make all mines aware of all accidents, and their circumstances, that surrounded that accident and then what types of accidents reoccur. This is viewed as a major gap in the dissemination of information that could make a difference in the industry, with regards to safety. This study aims to compile a database (or "tool box") of commonly occurring incidents and accidents, stating the event, possibly causes and recommended control tools that could be put in place to ameliorate the risk. The database would be available to all mines and would particularly benefit small mines, as they would not have the resources to generate their own information bases.

Primary outputs

A database that identifies common accidents and control measures that may be put in place to reduce the risk.

Scope

- Identify repeat accidents and list the activities associated with them.
- Conduct an activity based risk assessment for each.
- Identify the controls that can be put in place.

Integration of leading indicators with modern technology transfer tools

Separate proposals should be submitted for the two tracks:

TRACK A – SafetyProject Title

Leading indicators for mining safety

Motivation

A considerable amount of data is available through the DME SAMRASS database to evaluate the past performance of the mines. These are referred to as lagging indicators of performance. However, in seeking to affect change in the mining industry, tracking the lagging indicators will mean that the approach taken to improving safety is reactive, or after the fact. By being proactive by putting in place interventions and tracking their implementation, the success or otherwise of these can be monitored and refinements made if necessary. However, it is important to identify the important leading indicators and decide how these are implemented, monitored and measured. Leading measures need to be identified for the mining industry and if necessary specifically for different mineral or mining sectors. With the advent of computers and modern training tools it should now be possible to convey clearly and effectively the leading indicators for improved mining safety. There should also be a means of monitoring and measuring the leading indicators so that a database can be established to allow tracking of the indicators on a particular mining operation. This data should be in a standard format that is retrievable so a general data base for all mines in South Africa can be built. Modern technology and/or communication techniques should be used to convey new knowledge to a wide range of production personnel on an on-going basis.

Primary outputsPhase 1:

Identify leading indicators – consolidate work done nationally and internationally on mine safety leading indicators

Phase 2:

Techniques that will assist with monitoring and measuring the leading indicators that will contribute to safety on mines.

Phase 3:

Booklets, comics or any other means for conveying safety messages, including leading indicators, to mining personnel at all levels on an on-going basis.

Scope

Phase 1: Identify the main leading indicators that should be monitored and measured that will contribute to safety performance in the mines.

Phase 2: Capture identified leading indicators and analyse their usefulness and contribution to safety. This will involve extensive field work on various mines in all sectors.

Phase 3: Investigate means for building a database of leading indicators that will be useful for a mine and the industry in contributing to safety performance.

Track B – Health

Project Title

Best practice on improved diagnostic tools for early diagnosis of occupational diseases

Motivation

The unchanged prevalence of silicosis especially in gold and coal sectors over a decade, as well as tuberculosis and noise induced hearing loss remain an occupational health challenge for the mining industry. There have been several SIMRAC research projects on occupational respiratory diseases and noise induced hearing loss, however no research has been done on best practice on improved early diagnostic tools. As health performance lack clear lead indicators and has always been measured in lag indicators, the development of the best practice document will help identify the pointers. In this instance of medical diagnosis, the diagnostic tools are 'early lagging' indicators, i.e. lead indicators.

Primary outputs

Phase 1:

Detailed guidelines report on early lagging indicators diagnostic tools of occupational diseases

Phase 2:

Techniques that will assist with monitoring and measuring the early lagging indicators that will contribute to early diagnosis of occupational diseases.

Phase 3:

Booklets, comics or any other means for conveying early diagnosis of occupational diseases, including early lagging indicators, to mining personnel at all levels on an on-going basis.

Scope

Phase 1:

Literature review of research done locally and internationally on focussed practical diagnostic tools ('lead indicators'), that can be used in early diagnosis of occupational diseases focussing on but not limited to silicosis, pulmonary tuberculosis and noise induced hearing loss.

Phase 2:

Capture identified early lagging indicators and analyse their usefulness and contribution to early diagnosis of occupational diseases. This will involve extensive field work on various mines in all sectors. Conduct stakeholder workshops to discuss results prior to final product.

Phase 3:

Investigate means for building a database of early lagging indicators that will be useful for a mine and the industry in contributing to health performance.

NOTICE 1858 OF 2005INTERNATIONAL TRADE ADMINISTRATION COMMISSION
OF SOUTH AFRICACUSTOMS AND EXCISE TARIFF APPLICATIONS*LIST 16/2005

The International Trade Administration Commission of South Africa (ITAC) has received the following application concerning the Customs and Excise Tariff. Any objection to or comment on this representation should be submitted to the Chief Commissioner, ITAC, Private Bag X753, Pretoria, 0001, within six weeks of the date of this notice. Attention is drawn to the fact that the rate of duty mentioned in the application is that requested by the applicant and that the Commission may, depending on its findings, recommend a lower or higher rate of duty.

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION

Please note that if any information is considered to be confidential then a non-confidential version of the information must be submitted, simultaneously with the confidential version. In submitting a non-confidential version the following rules are strictly applicable and parties must indicate:

- Where confidential information has been omitted and the nature of such information;*
- A summary of the confidential information which permits a reasonable understanding of the substance of the confidential information; and*
- In exceptional cases, where information is not susceptible to summary, reasons must be submitted to this effect.*

This rule applies to all parties and to all correspondence with and submissions to the Commission, which unless indicated to be confidential and filed together with a non-confidential version, will be made available to other interested parties.

If a party considers that any document of another party, on which that party is submitting representations, does not comply with the above rules and that such deficiency affects that party's ability to make meaningful representations, the details of the deficiency and the reasons why that party's rights are so affected must be submitted to the commission in writing forthwith (and at the latest 14 days prior to the date on which that party's submission is due). Failure to do so timeously will seriously hamper the proper administration of the investigation, and such party will not be able to subsequently claim an inability to make meaningful representations on the basis of the failure of such other party to meet the requirements.

Of customs duty on:

Other yarn of polyester, partially orientated yarn (non-textured) classifiable under tariff subheading 5402.42 for the manufacture of textured polyester yarn classifiable under tariff subheading 5402.33.

Volume 3

provides in depth detail on the selection, installation, operation and control methods for traffic signals.

Volume 4
