1. MANDATE AND SCOPE OF THE POLICY

Introduction

1. Education district offices have a pivotal role in ensuring that all learners have access to education of progressively high quality, since district offices are the link between Provincial Education Departments (PEDs), their respective education institutions and the public.
2. This policy provides a national framework for the organisation and staffing of education district offices and the delegated authority, roles and responsibilities of district officials for the institutions within their care.

Legislative authority

3. This policy is determined in terms of the National Education Policy Act, 1996 (Act 27 of 1996) (NEPA) which empowers the Minister to:

“determine national policy for the planning, provision, financing, staffing, co-ordination, management, governance, programmes, monitoring, evaluation and well-being of the education system ...” (s. 3(4)).
4. The Minister is required to direct such policy towards:

“achieving close co-operation between the national and provincial governments on matters relating to education, including the development of capacity in the departments of education, and the effective management of the national education system” (s. 4(o)).
5. The Minister is required to determine policy after consulting the Council of Education Ministers (CEM) (s. 5(1)(a)), which in turn is required by NEPA to:

“promote a national education policy which takes full account of the policies of the government, the principles contained in section 4 [of NEPA], the education interests and needs of the provinces, and the respective competence of Parliament and the provincial legislatures ...” (s. 9(4)(a)).

6. This policy is determined with the advice and consent of the CEM.
7. Education districts are part of the provincial sphere of government. They have no original powers or functions prescribed by law but operate in terms of national and provincial legislation and provincial delegations. They are not empowered to raise their own revenues.
8. This policy does not propose changing the legal position of education districts. Rather it provides a common approach, approved by the CEM, to the demarcation, organisation, staffing, delegation of authority and resourcing of education districts across all PEDs.
9. In each province the power to demarcate, name and organise education districts vests with the MEC for Education, who is the executive authority responsible for the organisation of the PED (Public Service Act, 1994 (Proclamation 103 of 1994) (PSA), s. 1, 3(7)(a)). The MEC also determines districts’ public service staff establishment in terms of the PSA (s. 3(7)(a)) and determines the educator staff establishment in terms of the Employment of Educators Act, 1998 (EEA) (Act 76 of 1998) (s. 5(1)). An MEC must determine the educator establishment of a province subject to national post provisioning norms. Staffing matters such as post provisioning and remuneration are subject to continuous adjustment through collective agreements in the appropriate bargaining chamber, in terms of the relevant labour legislation.

Rationale for the policy

10. This policy is part of a broader government initiative to improve the capacity of the public service to respond to the challenges of economic development, poverty eradication and service delivery. The National Development Plan 2030: Our Future—Make it Work (2012) (NDP) (p. 399) pays particular attention to the country's need for a public service that is "more capable, more professional and more responsive" to citizens' needs. In its discussion of the priorities in basic education the NDP (pp. 295-315) makes clear that education district offices must exhibit such qualities when performing their essential function, namely to support schools to deliver the curriculum.
11. This policy also contributes to a suite of initiatives undertaken after 1994 by Ministers of Education and since 2009 by the Minister of Basic Education, advised by the Council of Education Ministers, to equip PEDs with policy tools, plans and other resources to help raise the quality of teaching and learning in schools.
12. The Constitution protects the citizens' right to education and equal access to government services. The reality is that educational opportunity and educational success are unequally distributed and the intensity and quality of service delivery varies considerably from one education district to another across the provinces. The disparities between high and low achieving districts are gross and unacceptable in democratic South Africa. The disparities are particularly severe in rural districts, especially those that for generations were part of rural homelands that lacked a secure economic resource basis. Such districts probably constitute the majority of education districts in South Africa.
13. The condition of district offices is not uniform throughout all provinces or within provinces. Some district offices understand their roles well and perform them to a high level of efficiency, but others do not. The main limiting factors on districts' effectiveness are that:

- 13.1 Some education districts are responsible for too many education institutions and as a result cannot provide effective services to them;
- 13.2 The respective delegated authority, roles, relationships and lines of accountability of provincial head offices, district offices and education institutions are not clearly formulated, understood and exercised;
- 13.3 Some district offices do not have delegated authority to plan and develop their programmes, manage their own budgets and recruit or deploy staff members in their own offices or in education institutions. District Directors need adequate delegated decision-making authority from their respective provincial departments to effect necessary changes that are designed to improve learning performance. The absence of clearly delegated authority causes intolerable bureaucratic delays in service delivery since many decisions cannot be taken promptly but must be referred to higher authority. This creates uncertainty, impedes delivery and hampers quality management;
- 13.4 Post-provisioning is uneven and does not reflect the responsibilities entrusted to district offices. Even when posts have been established many are unfilled. Few staff members have job related training or have been required to meet skills criteria suited to the work they do. Some district offices do not have the necessary capacity to handle their current administrative, management and professional responsibilities. This situation reflects poor human resource practices relating to recruitment and appointment of key staff members. Service delivery by many district offices, especially with respect to the vital function of curriculum support, therefore falls far short of what education institutions and the public expect.

14. In recent years PEDs have given increased priority to their district administrative and professional responsibilities. District boundaries have been changed and district offices have been restructured to make them more effective. Successive drafts of this policy have been workshopped with PEDs and district managers and have had a useful effect. Until now, however, no official national policy has guided PEDs as to what an education office should be or do.
15. PEDs agree that a national policy including indicative national norms for district offices is essential, but it must be designed with full appreciation for the individual needs and characteristics of provincial systems. While some national norms (such as nomenclature) must be applied in the same way in all provinces, others (such as district size) need to be formulated and applied in an educationally defensible manner depending on the varied conditions among and within provinces. Impoverished rural districts, especially those with small and dispersed populations, where roads and other communications are poorly developed, deserve special consideration. The key purpose of this national policy is therefore to provide the framework to enable PEDs to demarcate, structure and staff their district offices effectively, so that all education institutions receive the services they need to improve education provision and quality.

Scope of the policy

16. This policy provides:
  - 16.1 a uniform nomenclature that establishes a common basis for district norms and standards across all nine provinces;

- 16.2 norms for district and circuit size which must be applied in a manner that takes into account local circumstances and which makes educational sense; and
  - 16.3 a framework within which PEDs can provide district offices with the necessary roles, delegated authority, functions, resources and skills to enable them to perform their core functions, with additional support for districts where the educational needs are greatest.
17. In conjunction with other initiatives, such measures will promote more equal possibilities of educational access, retention and success in education institutions across all districts.

Limitations of the policy

18. The district development policy will not eliminate deep-seated socio-economic inequality among the communities that district offices serve. No education measures on their own can achieve that, though well functioning schools have the historic mission of providing opportunities for learners to rise above their circumstances. On its own the policy cannot provide the conditions to ensure that all schools function well. It is not a substitute for ensuring that all schools meet national standards of infrastructure, services, equipment, learning materials, IT connectivity and teaching quality. The Minister of Basic Education is committed to helping PEDs to achieve such standards as rapidly as possible and the other initiatives referred to above deal with such matters.

2. THE CONCEPT OF AN EDUCATION DISTRICT

Nomenclature

19. A standard nomenclature will apply in all provinces in order to provide a uniform and consistent basis for policy:

19.1 Education district. A “district” is an area of a province which is demarcated by an MEC for administrative purposes. The district is thus the first-level administrative sub-division of a PED. Depending on the context, the term “district” is used to describe either the geographic area or the administrative unit.

19.2 District office. A district office is the management sub-unit of a PED. It is the headquarters of its district which is responsible for the Basic Education institutions in its district.

19.3 District Director. A District Director is the head of a district office and executes prescribed functions using authority delegated by the Head of the PED.

19.4 Education circuit. A circuit is an area of an education district which is demarcated by an MEC for administrative purposes. It is the second-level administrative sub-division of a PED. Depending on the context, the term “circuit” is used to describe either the geographic area or the administrative unit.

19.5 Circuit office. A circuit office is the management sub-unit of a district which is responsible for the Basic Education institutions in its circuit.

19.6 Circuit Manager. A Circuit Manager is the head of a circuit office and executes prescribed functions which have been allocated by the District Director or the Head of the PED.

19.7 Subject Adviser. A Subject Adviser is a specialist office-based educator in a district office or circuit office whose function is to facilitate curriculum implementation and improve the environment and process of learning and teaching by visiting schools, consulting with and advising school principals and teachers on curriculum matters.

Role of education district offices

20. District offices are local hubs of PEDs and provide the vital lines of communication between the provincial head office and the education institutions in their care. Subject to provincial plans, their task is to work collaboratively with principals and educators in schools, with the vital assistance of circuit offices, to improve educational access and retention, give management and professional support, and help schools achieve excellence in learning and teaching. District offices, supported by their circuit offices, have four main roles which they must execute with due priority being given to the schools most in need of their services:

20.1 Planning

1. Collecting and analysing school, circuit and district data to inform planning;
2. Assisting schools with compiling school improvement or development plans; and
3. Integrating school improvement or development plans into district plans.

20.2 Support

1. Providing an enabling environment and targeted support for education institutions within the district to do their work in line with education law and policy;
2. Assisting school principals and educators to improve the quality of teaching and learning in their institutions through school visits, classroom observation, consultation, cluster meetings, suitable feedback reports and other means;
3. Serving as an information node for education institutions on education law, policy and administration;
4. Facilitating ICT connectivity in all institutions within the district; and
5. Providing an enabling environment and organising provision and support for the professional development of managers, educators and administrative staff members.

20.3 Oversight and accountability

1. Holding principals of education institutions in the district accountable for the performance of their schools;
2. Accounting to the PED for the performance of education institutions in the district; and
3. Accounting to the PED in terms of performance agreements that stipulate the roles, functions and responsibilities of district officials in line with relevant policies.

20.4 Public engagement

1. Informing and consulting with the public in an open and transparent manner; and
2. Upholding Batho Pele principles in all dealings with the public (see para. 63 below).

3. EDUCATION DISTRICT BOUNDARIES AND NORMS

District and circuit boundaries

Sensible alignment

21. Cabinet resolved in 2007 that all service departments should endeavour to align their functional boundaries to the constitutionally proclaimed municipal boundaries as determined by the Municipal Demarcation Board, and the Board is charged to assist the process.
22. Although municipalities have no responsibility for education provision, such alignment of district education boundaries is in keeping with the government's wish to streamline and co-ordinate service delivery across the three spheres of government, national, provincial and local.
23. It is essential that the educational needs and interests of the community are taken into account when local government Integrated Development Plans (IDPs) are designed or amended. Education district offices have an obligation to contribute as stakeholders in the local government planning process, and to take the local IDP into account when making their own plans for the district. Inter-governmental and inter-departmental co-operation are mandated by our Constitution, and cooperation between district offices and municipal governments is particularly important in such areas as school infrastructure planning; provision of municipal services to schools; early childhood development; health promotion; combating gangs, crime, alcohol and drug abuse in schools; and disaster management.
24. The alignment of education district boundaries with municipal boundaries is not a simple mechanical process. Alignment for alignment's sake may be counter-productive. Alignment must make educational sense. This implies that education district boundaries must meet the test of efficient education service delivery. In particular, education districts must not exceed the maximum permitted size provided for in this policy, which is expressed in terms of the number of schools within the district.

25. The appropriate alignment with municipal boundaries in each province will also depend significantly on local conditions such as settlement patterns, social history (including the impact of apartheid Group Areas legislation), terrain, distances, rurality, and road and rail links.

Education districts within metropolitan municipalities

26. Metropolitan municipalities are fully responsible for all municipal functions within their respective areas. They cover major, densely populated conurbations which are served by a large number of schools that fall under the respective PED.
27. It follows that within a metro there must be several education districts, none of which must exceed the upper limit of the norm for district size. In terms of the Local Government Municipal Structures Act, 1998 (Act 117 of 1998) metros are sub-divided for purposes of public consultation and efficient administration into wards or sub-council areas as the case may be. Education district boundaries should be aligned with ward or sub-council boundaries, as the case may be, to the extent that it makes educational sense.

Education districts within district municipalities

28. A district municipal area encloses several local municipal areas, and a district municipal council is primarily responsible for district-wide planning and capacity building for the local municipalities within its area. District municipal areas typically cover large, predominantly rural geographic areas including small towns and sometimes cities, with large but often dispersed populations which are served by large numbers of schools that fall under the respective PED.

29. It follows that a typical district municipal area must be sub-divided into several education districts, none of which must exceed the upper limit of the norm for district size. Since district municipal areas are already sub-divided into local municipal areas, the appropriate principle would be for a PED to demarcate education district boundaries according to local municipal boundaries, to the extent that it makes educational sense.
30. Education district boundaries and alignment may be reviewed from time to time by PEDs to take account of changing circumstances.

Circuit boundaries

31. The demarcation of education circuit boundaries in relation to municipal ward or sub-council boundaries may have certain functional advantages such as those suggested above. Like district boundaries, however, alignment for alignment's sake may be counter-productive. Alignment must make educational sense. This implies that education circuit boundaries must meet the test of efficient education service delivery and in particular must observe the national norm for circuit size.

Circuit and district size norms

32. In order to ensure effective service delivery and an appropriate span of control for circuit and district offices it is necessary to establish national norms that regulate the respective size of an education circuit and an education district.
33. The appropriate size of an education circuit is best expressed in terms of the number of schools for which a circuit office has responsibility. In turn, the appropriate size of an education district is best expressed in terms of the number of education circuit offices for which a district office is responsible.

34. Taking all relevant factors, including geographical, staff and financial implications into account, the national norms are as follows:

34.1 An education circuit office must be responsible for no less than [15] 25 and no more than 30 schools; and 34.2 An education district must comprise no less than [5] 10 and no more than [10] 15 education circuits.

35. [It follows that no] No district should have fewer than [75] 250 schools or more than [300] 400 schools.

- [36. However, to guard against the maximum limit becoming a de facto norm, two other norms will apply:

36.1 In any district the average number of schools per circuit must not exceed 25; and

36.2 In any province the average number of schools per district must not exceed 250.]

Implementing district alignment and district size norms

- [37. When these norms are applied across all districts the result will be that district sizes, expressed by the number of schools for which a district office is responsible, will vary far less than at present. Mega districts with many hundreds of schools will be cut down to size. In any province the average number of schools in a district will not be more than 250; but some districts in the same province may have as many as 300 schools while others may have as few as 75, depending on geographic circumstances and population density. Similarly, in any district the average number of schools in a circuit will not be more than 25; but some circuits may have as many as 30 schools and others may have as few as 15, depending on the conditions. Other things being equal, it is better for districts to manage fewer rather than more schools, especially where populations are sparsely settled over wide rural areas or where populations are dense as in metropolitan areas and each school has large numbers of learners and teachers.

38. If a PED currently has on average fewer than 250 schools per district (or fewer than 25 schools per circuit and 10 circuits per district) and no circuit or district exceeds the respective maximum, no advantage may be gained from altering the size of districts or changing district boundaries, provided that district and circuit offices are sufficiently staffed and resourced and effectively managed. However, if a PED has many districts with relatively few schools it may be difficult to recruit sufficient capable staff members to manage all its district offices. In order to use scarce staff resources efficiently it would be sensible to reduce the number of districts or enlarge certain districts to take in more schools.]
39. [In brief, the] The application of the alignment policy and the national norms for circuit and district size must be done by each PED with educational considerations uppermost taking into account contextual, staffing and equity factors.
40. Circuit and district size norms may be reviewed from time to time by the Department of Basic Education (DBE) with the advice of PEDs.

4. EDUCATION DISTRICT ORGANISATION, FUNCTIONS AND DELEGATIONS

Support, co-ordination and monitoring of districts

41. The roles and functions of a district office have one overriding purpose, which is to help all education institutions to deliver education of high quality. Provincial Heads of Department (HoDs) are accountable for the performance of their district education offices. HoDs must therefore ensure that district and circuit offices are progressively organised, staffed and resourced to undertake the functions envisaged in this policy.
42. District Directors occupy positions of significant responsibility and importance to the mission of PEDs. They manage a large multi-disciplinary staff complement; have oversight over many circuits and large numbers of educational institutions; engage directly with the principals of schools and chairs of School Governing Bodies (SGBs); advocate and implement national and provincial policies and programmes; advance the educational interests of thousands of learners; and are accountable for the performance of the learners and institutions under their care.
43. PEDs must therefore ensure that District Directors are highly competent managers who are equipped by training and experience to lead their districts well, and that they are given suitable opportunities for professional and managerial development.
44. As heads of their district offices, District Directors operate in terms of delegations and administrative instructions from provincial HoDs. Such delegations and instructions must be clear and appropriate to the District Director's level of responsibility. In particular District Directors must be given sufficient discretion to make decisions quickly and execute their mandates efficiently.

45. In addition, provincial HoDs must ensure that district offices receive timely and effective administrative and professional support from the relevant line and staff functions in the provincial head office. PEDs have a particular responsibility to support poorly-functioning district offices, if necessary with multi-disciplinary support teams, in order to improve their capacity for robust and responsible management.
46. Given the front-line importance and professional responsibilities of the district office, a simple hierarchical relationship between head office and district office is not appropriate. Since the relationship between them is inherently complex, clear and efficient organisational links and channels of communication between provincial head offices and district offices are essential. The precise nature of such links must respond to provincial circumstances and cannot be uniformly prescribed in a national policy, but some principles must be observed.
47. Firstly, a strong planning culture must be exhibited by provincial head offices and district offices alike. This has several dimensions.
  - 47.1. Electronic connectivity between provincial education department head offices and district offices and between district and circuit offices and schools, and the use of electronic administrative tools and professional resources must become the rule not the exception.
  - 47.2. PEDs and district offices must put a high value on the collection and verification, analysis and application of educational data from annual school statistical surveys, Annual National Assessments (ANAs), National School Certificate (NSC) results and other sources.

- 47.3. District plans need to reflect national and provincial policy priorities while being responsive to school priorities and plans based on an analysis of up-to-date school and learner data. While school plans are the essential drivers of district plans, the latter must function within a provincial system of coordination and support.
- 47.4. PEDs and district offices must operate according to predictable work programmes. Regular meetings must be scheduled at provincial, district and circuit levels for consultation with managers, specialists and staff in functions, school principals, SGB chairpersons, and representatives of stakeholder bodies. Such meetings need to be open and inter-active in order to encourage meaningful feedback, exchange of views and, where appropriate, collective decision-making.
48. Secondly, the organisational culture of PEDs and district offices (including their circuit offices) needs to encourage, expect and reward collaboration across functional areas. Colleagues in different line and staff functions must work co-operatively in order to respond effectively to the needs of SGBs, school principals, parents, teachers and learners. A culture of inclusion is required rather than a culture of differentiation. Horizontal, task-oriented working groups are therefore more appropriate than static, hierarchical silos in carrying out district functions. Skilful, flexible project management is particularly necessary.
49. Strong planning and collaborative cultures will enable both provincial and district offices to optimise their performance. Monitoring of school and district performance and timely reports will become a routine aspect of district operations, feeding back relevant and reliable information to decision-makers at all levels from school to circuit to district, and from district to PED and DBE. Increasingly, electronic reporting and communication will speed such processes.

District organisation and functions

50. Each district office should be organised in teams to deliver and report on a core basket of services. The precise composition of each team and its functions may vary from district to district but they will tend to resemble the following:

50.1. District Curriculum Support Team

Core functions:

- (a) Informing schools about national and provincial policies, and assisting schools to implement them appropriately;
- (b) Managing curriculum support including consultation with and advice to teachers, facilitating inclusive education and reporting on school visits;
- (c) Promoting and organising provision of professional development of educators in co-operation with the South African Council for Educators (SACE); and
- (d) Providing correct and timely Learner and Teacher Support Material (LTSM).

50.2. District Management and Governance Support Team

Core functions:

- (a) Supporting and advising school principals and School Governing Bodies;
- (b) Monitoring and reporting on school performance; and
- (c) Advancing installation and application of Information and Communications Technology (ICT) for communication, e-education and administrative support.

50.3. District Learner Support Team

Core functions:

- (a) Facilitating and coordinating Education Specialised Programmes including psychological, social work, career guidance, remedial and therapeutic services for all learners;

- (b) Advancing learner health and well-being;
- (c) Managing the National School Nutrition Programme (NSNP);
- (d) Advancing school safety and security; and
- (e) Managing learner transport.

50.4. District Examination and Assessment Team

Core functions:

- (a) Administering Annual National Assessment (ANA);
- (b) Administering National Senior Certificate (NSC); and
- (c) Administering Continuous Assessment (CASS).

50.5. District Operations Team

Core functions:

- (a) Administering the Education Management Information System (EMIS);
- (b) Managing human resources; and
- (c) Managing financial and supply chain services.

Note: Operational matters are essential back office functions of a district. It is desirable that they are all managed by the district office directly in terms of delegations. If the requisite specialist capacity is not yet available in a district office the PED may retain the relevant function at head office until the district is capacitated to handle it.

51. Each PED head office is responsible for planning the deployment and operation of these core services in consultation with District Directors so as to optimise the district's main roles of planning, support, accountability and public information. District teams need to work collaboratively, especially in planning, executing and reporting on school visits in co-operation with circuit offices. District offices have a special responsibility to advise and support educational institutions that are performing poorly and are therefore most in need of its services.

Delegations

52. Delegation is the appropriate legal instrument, subject to s. 42A of the PSA and s. 44 of the PFMA, with which a Provincial HoD entrusts a District Director to execute the functions ascribed to a district office. A District Director is accountable to the provincial HoD in terms of such delegations (as well as the District Director's performance agreement) and must report to the HoD on the performance of the delegated functions. A delegation does not divest the HoD of responsibility for the delegated function, and an HoD may confirm, vary or revoke any decision taken by a District Director as a result of such delegation, subject to any rights that may have become vested as a result of such delegation.
53. Five principles are paramount:
- a) Each delegation must be made and executed subject to the Constitution, the applicable laws and collective agreements.
  - b) No function must be ascribed to a District Director without an accompanying delegation of authority.
  - c) The competence of a District Director to undertake a delegated function must be ascertained ahead of time and where necessary linked to specific training or professional development (see also the note at para. 50.5 above).
  - d) A function which is ascribed or a delegation which is assigned to a District Director must be accompanied by appropriate funding and other relevant resources such as personnel, ICT connectivity or access to PERSAL, which will enable the District Director to execute the function.
  - e) A District Director must undertake the delegated function diligently and must monitor and report regularly to the provincial HoD on the performance of the function.

54. The following delegations are essential for district effectiveness. They must be assigned by the provincial HoD to a District Director subject to applicable legislation, fair labour practice and collective agreements as the case may be, in accordance with the principles enunciated in the previous paragraph:

54.1. Human resource management

- a) Authority to appoint any person or to promote or transfer any educator (including substitutes) or public servant under the District Director's area of jurisdiction;
- b) In the case of a new school, until the relevant SGB is established, authority to appoint, promote or transfer a staff member in a temporary capacity to any suitable post on the school's establishment; and
- c) Authority to institute disciplinary proceedings and impose a sanction on an educator or public servant within the District Director's area of jurisdiction in accordance with the relevant disciplinary code and procedures.

54.2. School governance

- a) Authority to [dissolve] recommend the dissolution of an ineffective SGB to the HOD; and
- b) Authority to [allocate or withdraw] recommend the allocation or withdrawal, on reasonable grounds, a function from a SGB to the HOD.

54.3. Financial management

- a) Authority to manage the assets and liabilities of the PED in the district, including the safeguarding and maintenance of assets;
- b) Authority to procure goods and services, including equipment, up to a value of R500 000;
- c) [Authority to take appropriate disciplinary steps against any official under the District Director's authority who commits an act of financial misconduct in terms of the PFMA.]

55. Delegations must be:

- (a) Communicated by letter to the delegate;
- (b) Circulated within the PED, published on the PED's website and made available, on request, to a principal, SGB chairperson or member of the public;
- (c) Clear and precise;
- (d) Appropriate to the function concerned;
- (e) Consistent with the appropriate legislation;
- (f) Accompanied by sufficient resources;
- (g) Subject to appropriate limitations; and
- (h) Accompanied by a reporting schedule.

Circuit office organisation and functions

56. The circuit office is a field office of the district office headed by the Circuit Manager. It is the closest point of contact between education institutions and the PED. Principals depend on the circuit office for information, administrative services and professional support.
57. Circuit Managers, like District Directors, are expected to exercise significant authority in their dealings with their own staff, principals of schools, chairpersons of SGBs and the public at large. PEDs and District Directors must therefore ensure that Circuit Managers are capable managers who are equipped by training and experience to lead their circuits well, and that they are given suitable opportunities for professional and managerial development.
58. As heads of their circuit offices, Circuit Managers operate in terms of allocated functions and administrative instructions from District Directors. Such functional allocations and instructions must be clear and appropriate to Circuit Managers' level of responsibility and must allow Circuit Managers an appropriate level of discretion.

59. A circuit office is generally a small unit comprising a Circuit Manager, professional and support staff. Each PED, in consultation with District Directors, must organise its circuit offices according to their needs and circumstances in the light of the national district staffing norms, in order to achieve the optimum number of site visits by circuit and district staff to education institutions within the circuit. Circuit offices have a special responsibility to advise and support educational institutions that are performing poorly and are therefore most in need of its services.
60. In view of the vital importance of the early years of schooling, circuit offices need their own specialist Subject Advisers to support teachers in the primary school phases. Generally, a circuit office will not have its own secondary phase Subject Advisers but will facilitate visits by specialist district teams to secondary schools within the circuit. In some cases PEDs may establish specialist secondary teams at circuit level, depending on local needs and the availability of the appropriate secondary Subject Advisers and financial resources.
61. A District Director must ensure that a Circuit Manager receives adequate support and resources to fulfil the functions entrusted to the circuit office. The Circuit Manager is accountable for the performance of such functions to the District Director and must report to the District Director at specified intervals.
62. The core functions of the circuit office are to:
  - a) Provide a channel of communication between the district office and education institutions;
  - b) Provide management support to education institutions;
  - c) Provide administrative services to education institutions;
  - d) Facilitate training for principals, SMTs and SGBs;
  - e) Monitor the functionality of education institutions;

- f) Provide curriculum support to grade R practitioners and primary grade teachers;
- g) Facilitate visits of specialist district teams to secondary schools; and
- h) Report to the district office.

Batho Pele

63. In their dealings with the public the staff members of district and circuit offices are required to exhibit the Batho Pele principles. These involve consultation with clients, setting and observing service standards, increasing access to services, ensuring courteous behaviour, providing the required information to the public, acting openly and transparently, redressing sub-standard performance and ensuring value for money.<sup>1</sup>
64. In undertaking their responsibilities, district staff members are subject to the Code of Conduct for Public Servants or SACE's Code of Professional Ethics for educators, depending on their employment category. In common with all other public servants and educators, district office staff members are expected to fulfill the requirements of their code with dedication and commitment, making their services available to the schools and the public even-handedly, without bias or preference, upholding the values of the Constitution and serving the public interest in all they do.

<sup>1</sup> Department of Public Service and Administration, Batho Pele – People First: White Paper on Transforming Public Service Delivery (Pretoria: 18 September 1997). The eight principles of Batho Pele are: 1. Consultation. Citizens should be consulted about the level and quality of the public services they receive and, wherever possible, should be given a choice about the services they are offered. 2. Service standards. Citizens should be told what level and quality of public services they will receive so that they will know what to expect. 3. Access. All citizens should have equal access to the services to which they are entitled. 4. Courtesy. Citizens should be treated with courtesy and consideration. 5. Information. Citizens should be given full, accurate information about the public services they are entitled to receive. 6. Openness and transparency. Citizens should be told how national and provincial departments are run, how much they cost, and who is in charge. 7. Redress. If the promised standard of service is not delivered, citizens should be offered an apology, a full explanation and a speedy and effective remedy; and when complaints are made, citizens should receive a sympathetic, positive response. 8. Value for money. Public services should be provided economically and efficiently in order to give citizens the best possible value for money.

5. STAFFING DISTRICT OFFICES

Principles

65. The Minister's legislative authority to determine policy in relation to education districts, including staffing matters, has been explained above in paras. 3-9. The MEC in a province determines staff establishments for district offices subject to the PSA and the EEA, as the case may be, and implements staffing policy subject to the relevant labour law and collective agreements.
66. The main consideration in establishing district post provisioning norms is to ensure that each district has the capacity to bring effective professional, management and administrative services to educational institutions in order to help them improve the quality of teaching and learning. Districts vary in their educational needs as well as in their physical and social characteristics. Equity in the distribution of staff support to institutions is therefore a principle that must guide the norms in order to achieve quality education for all learners.
67. This will be achieved in two ways: firstly, by ensuring that all education districts in all provinces have at least the minimum staffing level required to effectively deliver essential support to educational institutions, thus setting minimum standards; and secondly, by taking into account contextual factors that impact differently on different districts.
68. The essential level of support is described by the basket of educational services that a district must provide to the institutions under its care.
69. The model of post provisioning must incorporate the norms governing the sizes of districts and circuits. It must benefit from good practice in successful education districts. The proposed norms must be tested against provincial realities with the advice of knowledgeable provincial and district managers and must be intelligible, credible and affordable. Part of the methodology must involve calculating the staff complement required to enable the optimum number of visits to be made by teams from the district or circuit offices to an institution per term, taking into account that poorly performing institutions need the most support.

70. Where functions delegated to a District Director are not covered by the model, PEDs could allocate additional staff members based on the same principles.
71. The district post provisioning norms for educator staff must be established using tools provided in the Personnel Administrative Measures (PAM) determined by the Minister in terms of the EEA and the Occupation Specific Dispensation (OSD) agreed in the ELRC (Collective Agreement No. 1 of 2008).

The model

72. The model has two components: the parameter by which the staffing level of a particular function is expressed, and the factor that takes into account the context or circumstances of a particular district.

Parameters

73. The nature of a function will determine the parameter that will be used to express staffing needs of that function. Since districts exist to serve schools, staffing needs will be expressed in terms of the number of learners, educators or schools to be served, depending on the function. For instance staffing needs for curriculum services are best expressed by the number of learners or educators to be served. Functions relating to school governance and management are better expressed in terms of the number of schools to be served.

Factors

74. Factors are expressed as weights to ensure that the distribution of staff among districts is equitable. A number of potential factors have been considered and two salient factors have been selected in order to keep the model simple and functional without compromising the equity principle:

- 74.1 Distance. The distances that district officials need to travel to schools. This factor takes into account the geographical features and population density of different provinces. This factor will contribute a maximum of 10% additional posts.

Distance factor

Average distance from the district office to schools*
Range (kms)	Weighting
121 and above	1.10
91-120	1.08
61-90	1.05
31-60	1.02
0-30	1

*The "average distance" is the sum of the distance of each school in a district from the district office divided by the number of schools.

- 74.2 Poverty. Schools serving extremely poor communities require additional support from their district offices to promote quality education. The poverty factor, related to the proportion of non-fee schools, will contribute a maximum of 5% additional posts in a district office.

Poverty factor

Range	Weighting
70% or more no-fee schools	1.05
Fewer than 70% non-fee schools	1

75. The tables show the different weights allocated to each factor in relation to the magnitude of their potential impact on the staffing needs of districts.
76. The model may be reviewed from time to time by the DBE in consultation with PEDs taking into account contextual and equity factors.

6. CONCLUSION

77. Education district offices are the indispensable local hub of service provision to education institutions in a province. Their role is well recognised in education policy documents and departmental programmes, including Schooling 2025, and in the National Development Plan. Much is expected of them. Unfortunately many district offices have disappointing service records. This policy is designed to enable all district offices to perform according to expectations. This will happen only if the policy is implemented purposefully and progressively according to each province's needs and circumstances.
78. District offices cannot do what is expected of them if they remain responsible for excessive numbers of education institutions, if they are poorly staffed, if their district and circuit personnel are required to travel unreasonable distances to their schools, if transport is insufficient, if they are inadequately accommodated and if they have rudimentary means of communication, especially electronic communication, with schools and head offices. Nor can district offices do what is expected of them in the absence of appropriate delegations, a planning culture and a culture of collaboration between a PED and its district offices, or between a district office, its circuit offices and the education institutions they serve.
79. This policy is designed to enable PEDs to correct such deficiencies and provide district offices with the means to do their work well. A planned programme of implementation is required. Some actions must be undertaken before others can become effective. This suggests that the policy needs to be implemented in accordance with short, medium and long term plans.
80. The national department will work with PEDs (individually and through HEDCOM) on the implementation of the policy and will monitor their progress. The most effective way to do so is for each PED to report annually to DBE on how they are implementing district development in line with this policy. PEDs need to incorporate district development improvements in their strategic and operational plans and MTEF bids. This will enable the appropriate managers in DBE to advise on provincial plans and support provincial bids for the budgetary allocations PEDs need in order progressively to house, staff and supply their district offices according to the national norms in this document. In some provinces the deficits in physical, personnel and financial resources will take longer to overcome than in others, but in all provinces there is need for purposeful planning towards the achievement of the national norms including the qualitative changes in PED/district/circuit operations envisaged in the policy.

81. The policy's impact will be evaluated over time and where necessary adjusted. The true test of success will be the steady realisation across the nation of district offices that are fit for purpose and that deliver excellent service to their education institutions.

ANNEXURE*SCHEDULE 2*EXEMPTION FROM OBLIGATION TO APPLY FOR AND HOLD A LICENCE

1. The following activities are exempt from the requirement to apply for and hold a licence under the Act:
  - 1.1 The operation of a generation facility with an installed capacity of no more than 1MW which is connected to the national grid, in circumstances in which—
    - 1.1.1 the facility is installed and connected on the consumer side of the electricity meter and serves a single consumer located on that side of the electricity meter;
    - 1.1.2 the generator has entered into a connection agreement with, or obtained approval from, the holder of the relevant distribution licence, which agreement or approval authorises the supply of electricity into the national grid if the facility engages in such supply; and
    - 1.1.3 as at the date on which the connection agreement is entered into or the approval is obtained, the Minister has not published a notice in the Gazette stating that the amount of megawatts (MW) allocated in the integrated resource plan for embedded generation of this nature has been reached.
  - 1.2 The operation of a generation facility with an installed capacity of no more than 1MW which is connected to the national grid, in circumstances in which—
    - 1.2.1 the generation facility is operated solely to supply a single consumer or related consumers by transporting electricity through the national grid;
    - 1.2.2 the generator has entered into a use-of-system agreement with the holder of the distribution or transmission licence in respect of the power system over which the electricity is to be transported; and
    - 1.2.3 as at the date on which the use-of-system agreement is entered into, the Minister has not published a notice in the Gazette stating that the amount of MW allocated in the integrated resource plan for embedded generation of this nature has been reached.

- 1.3 The operation of a generation facility with an installed capacity of no more than 1MW which is not connected to the national grid, for the sole purpose of producing electricity—
  - 1.3.1 for consumption by the generator or owner of the generation facility in question;
  - 1.3.2 for consumption by a consumer who is related to the generator or owner of the generation facility within the meaning contemplated in section 2 of the Companies Act, 2008 (Act No. 71 of 2008); or
  - 1.3.3 which is supplied to a consumer for consumption on the same property on which the generation facility is located.
- 1.4 The operation of a generation facility for demonstration purposes only, whether or not the facility is connected to a transmission or distribution power system, in circumstances in which—
  - 1.4.1 the electricity produced by the generation facility is not sold; and
  - 1.4.2 if the facility is connected to the national grid, the generator has entered into a connection agreement with, or obtained approval from, the holder of the relevant transmission or distribution licence.
- 1.5 The operation of a generation facility for the sole purpose of providing standby or back-up electricity in the event of, and for a duration no longer than, an electricity supply interruption.
- 1.6 The continued operation of an existing generation facility which, immediately prior to the date of commencement of this Schedule, was exempt from the requirement to apply for and hold a licence under the Act.
- 1.7 The operation of a distribution facility that is connected to a generation facility contemplated in items 1.1 to 1.6 and is used exclusively for the transportation of electricity from that facility to—
  - 1.7.1 the consumer, if the electricity is not to be transported through the national grid; or
  - 1.7.2 the nearest point of connection, if the electricity is to be transported through the national grid.
- 1.8 The sale of electricity by a reseller in circumstances in which—

- 1.8.1 the tariff or price charged by the reseller to consumers does not exceed the tariff or price that would have been charged to such consumers for the electricity if it had been purchased from the holder of a distribution licence over the area in which the electricity is supplied to the consumer; and
- 1.8.2 the reseller has entered into an agreement with the holder of a distribution licence over such area which regulates the relationship between the reseller and the holder of the distribution licence and the obligations of the reseller in respect of the quality of supply to consumers.
2. For purposes of item 1:
- 2.1 "electricity meter" means a meter that is used to measure the flow of electricity that flows out of or into the national grid and has been installed by or on behalf of a licensed distributor;
- 2.2 "existing generation facility" means a generation facility which was in operation on or immediately prior to the date of commencement of this Schedule;
- 2.3 "national grid" means the publicly-owned interconnected network of transmission and distribution power systems used for the supply of electricity to customers across the territory of the Republic, and includes any portion thereof;
- 2.4 "point of connection" means the point at which a generator or consumer connects to the national grid;
- 2.5 "property" means:
- 2.5.1 a farm, agricultural holding, erf or sectional title unit; and
- 2.5.2 a building located on that farm, agricultural holding, erf or sectional title unit notwithstanding that the building extends beyond the boundary of that farm, agricultural holding, erf or sectional title unit;
- 2.6 "related consumers" means consumers which are related to each other within the meaning contemplated in section 2 of the Companies Act, 2008 (Act No. 71 of 2008);
- 2.7 "reseller" means a person which purchases electricity from a distribution licensee in order to on-sell such electricity to consumers.

SUMMARY NOTE*DRAFT LICENSING AND REGISTRATION NOTICE ("the Notice")

The purpose of the Notice is to exempt various categories of generation facilities and electricity resellers from the requirement to hold a licence under the Electricity Regulation Act, 2006 ("ERA"), and to require these activities to rather be registered with the National Energy Regulator ("NERSA"). It does so by amending the existing Schedule 2 to ERA so as to exempt these activities and, in the second paragraph of its introduction, requiring these activities to be registered.

Generally speaking, the Notice exempts five categories of generation facilities from the licensing requirement, in certain circumstances: embedded generation where no wheeling takes place (clause 1.1), facilities that wheel through the grid (clause 1.2 of the Annex), off-grid generation (clause 1.3 of the Annex), facilities used for demonstration purposes (clause 1.4 of the Annex), and back-up generation (clause 1.5 of the Annex).

Importantly, the first three categories of generation facilities are only exempt from the licensing requirement if their installed capacity is no more than 1MW. In the case of the first two categories, a facility will also only be eligible for exemption if the Minister of Energy ("the Minister") has not published a notice in the Gazette stating that the amount of megawatts (MW) allocated in the integrated resource plan ("IRP") for embedded generation of this nature has been reached.

The intention is that the IRP will specify an allocation for embedded generation facilities of up to 10MW in installed capacity. This provision in the IRP is intended to facilitate the licensing or registration of these facilities and do away with the need for the Minister on a case by case basis to grant approval for deviations from the IRP in terms of section 10(2)(g) of ERA for the relevant facilities. The result is, generally, as follows:

- qualifying generation facilities with a capacity of no more than 1MW will not require a licence but will rather be subject to registration with NERSA as per the Notice;
- qualifying generation facilities with a capacity of between 1MW and 10 MW will require a licence but no ministerial approval for deviation from the IRP will be required, provided that the IRP allocation for this category of facilities has not been used up; and
- generation facilities with a capacity of more than 10MW will require a ministerial approval for the deviation from the IRP for a licence to be issued by NERSA.

The sale of electricity by resellers (who purchase electricity from distribution licensees and on-sell to consumers) is also exempt in specified circumstances. The requirements for this exemption are: the tariff charged by the reseller does not exceed the tariff that would have applied if the consumers had purchased the electricity from the relevant distributor; and an appropriate agreement is in place with the licensed distributor.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

NO. 1486

02 DECEMBER 2016

LANGUAGE POLICY

The Council for the Built Environment (CBE) wishes to inform the public of its proposed Language Policy. Enquiries and comments on this policy may be forwarded to Evelyn Bramdeow on evelyn@cbe.org.za or tel 012 346 3985 by no later than Friday, 09 December 2016.

1. PREAMBLE

The Constitution of the Republic of South Africa (RSA) Act 108 of 1996 recognises 11 official languages; recognises the historically diminished use and status of indigenous languages and requires of the State to take practical and positive measures to elevate the status and advance the use of these languages. The Constitution further requires all official languages to enjoy parity of esteem and to be treated equitably.

To this end, the Official Use of Language Act 12 of 2012 was promulgated to, inter alia, provide for the regulation and monitoring of the use of official languages by national government for government purposes, to require the adoption of a language policy by a national department, national public entity and national public enterprise and the establishment of a language unit for a national department, national public entity and national public enterprise.

The Council for the Built Environment (CBE) as established in terms of section 2 of the Built Environment Act, No 43 of 2000 has, therefore, in compliance with the Use of Official Language Act, developed its Language Policy.

2. PURPOSE

The purpose of the Language Policy is to outline how the CBE will comply with and implement the provisions of the use of the Official Languages Act, 2012, and to use the chosen official languages to communicate its mandate and services to its stakeholders and South African citizens.

3. SCOPE AND APPLICATION

The provisions of this policy are applicable to all CBE employees, stakeholders and members of the public interacting with CBE.

4. NATURE OF CBE AND THE PROCESS TO DETERMINE OFFICIAL LANGUAGE

The Council for the Built Environment (CBE) is a statutory body established under the Council for the Built Environment Act (no. 43 of 2000). It is an overarching body that coordinates the six built environment Professional Councils (Architecture, Engineering, Landscape Architecture, Project and Construction Management, Property Valuation and Quantity Surveying) for the purpose of instilling good conduct within the professions, transforming the professions and advising the South African Government on built environment related issues.

The CBE is currently located in Pretoria, and has not yet established a presence in other provinces. Various communication channels are used to educate stakeholders about the services the CBE offers.

5. THE CBE POLICY FOR OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

The CBE is committed to making use of all eleven languages as set out in the Use of Official Languages Act, ACT No. 12 of 2012 where feasible, and as and when requested by members of the public.

5.1 Official languages

The CBE has adopted the eleven official languages of the Republic of South Africa as its official languages for the purpose of this policy.

The CBE will implement the following language usage measures:

- a) The internal and external operational business language for the CBE will be English.
- b) The following languages are considered for engagements with stakeholders and the public for Government purposes:
  - i. IsiNdebele, isiXhosa, isiZulu and siSwati (Nguni group);
  - ii. Sepedi, Sesotho, Setswana (Sotho group);

SCHEDULE- RULES

1. Definitions:

“Acupressure” means the physical pressure applied to acupoints which are found along meridian pathways and which is particularly effective in the treatment of pain.

“Animal health team” means all members involved with optimising the health of the animal. It could include but is not limited to the veterinarian, veterinary nurse, farrier, dentist, trainer, saddle fitter, chiropractor, veterinary acupuncturist, behaviourist, nutritionist and veterinary physiotherapist.

“Balance and proprioceptive training” means exercises designed to enhance and improve the patient’s ability to stand independently, and to maintain balance whilst the body is moving.

“Cardio-respiratory evaluation” means techniques employed by the veterinary physiotherapist to evaluate the cardio-respiratory system of patients within the prescribed scope of practise limited to auscultation of heart and lungs, calculation of heart rate and breathing rate and functional tests to evaluate the patient’s cardio-respiratory ability.

“Cardio-respiratory treatment” excludes medical treatments, includes but is not limited to the use of nebulisers, the therapy of percussions, vibrations, shaking and use of postural drainage positions.

“Cavalettis” are small jumps or poles placed at different angles and heights. The patient is required to step or trot over them. This exercise is used to improve proprioception and also to strengthen musculature involved with lifting of limbs.

“Dynamic evaluation” means the assessment of an animal patient whilst in motion, which requires active input from the patient.

“Functional diagnosis” means a diagnosis which describes the effect of the disease or injury on the ability of the animal to carry out its normal function for example decreased extension of the coxo-femoral joint vs anatomical diagnosis such as hip dysplasia.

“Goniometry” means the use of an instrument (the Goniometer) to measure the joint range of movement in flexion and extension.

“Ground work” means working with an animal on the ground using poles and cues to motivate them to perform specific exercises that will strengthen specific parts of their bodies. Ground work as opposed to ridden work is particularly used in relation to horses.

“Manual evaluation” means techniques employed by the veterinary physiotherapist, using his or her hands to evaluate soft tissue function, neurological function and joint range of movement.

“Neuro-muscular electrical stimulation [NMES]” is an electrotherapy modality that is used to artificially contract the muscles of the animal using electrical impulses to elicit a muscle contraction in innervated muscle. The electrical current is applied to the skin of the animal, using a conductive material and electrodes. It is used as a tool for assessing and treating the muscles and other associated soft tissue. It can form part of a program to activate muscles and prevent atrophy during training and rehabilitation, as well as a tool for assessing muscle function.

“Palpation” means a technique used to assess the texture and tone of an animal’s muscles and other soft tissue structures as well as particular anatomical landmarks.

“Passive evaluation” means the assessment of the neuro-muscular and musculo-skeletal state of the patient which do not require active input from the patient i.e. tests that can be applied by the practitioner without requiring the patient to actively move.

“Red flags” means warning signs that suggest that veterinary referral may be warranted. It is a term describing the ability to identify dangerous or potentially dangerous findings in the history or examination. Veterinary physiotherapists should be aware of these warning signs and know where to send the patients next. Some of the warning signs can be, but are not limited to:

- Unexplained bodyweight loss
- Loss of appetite or inappetence
- Lethargy
- Signs of illness such as vomiting and increased temperature
- Previous history of tumours
- Acute, severe pain and swelling
- Dysfunction of bladder and bowel
- Respiratory distress - tachypnoea, respiratory effort, cyanosis
- Cardiovascular distress- tachycardia, hypotension, pale mucous membrane [MM], slow or rapid capillary refill time (CRT)
- Non-weight bearing lameness
- Pain or discomfort during therapy
- Undiagnosed neurological signs
- Infected wounds
- Suspected zoonoses

“Rehabilitation exercise” means active exercises designed to achieve active pain-free range of movement, to increase muscle mass and muscle strength, improve daily function, improve balance, reduce lameness and prevent further injury.

“Resistance bands” means rubber bands of varying stiffness that increase the work of a muscle by adding resistance and thereby improving the muscle’s bulk, strength and endurance.

“Static evaluation” means the visual evaluation of the stationary animal taking into account posture, conformation, body score and any other cues that draws attention to any abnormalities.

“Stress point therapy” means tender, hyper-irritable spots found in the musculo-tendinous junction. Treatment of these stress points may include but is not limited to “hold and release” techniques and laser or light therapy.

“Trans-cutaneous electrical nerve stimulation [TENS]” is the use of electric currents produced by a device to stimulate the nerves for therapeutic purposes. TENS by definition covers the complete range of transcutaneously applied currents used for nerve excitation although the term is often used with a more restrictive intent, namely to describe the kind of pulses produced by portable stimulators used to treat pain.

“Trigger point therapy” means treatment of these trigger points that may include, but is not limited to “hold and release” techniques and laser or light therapy.

“Trigger points” means tender, hyper-irritable spots found in muscle bellies.

“Veterinary physiotherapy” means the treatment of dysfunction in the musculo-skeletal, neuro-muscular systems and cardio-respiratory system as well as the maintenance of optimal function and the prevention of dysfunction. The goal of veterinary physiotherapy is to maintain, restore and maximise optimal movement and functional ability throughout the lifespan of an animal.
